Indiana tied at top of U.S. list in vaping deaths

Courier staff report

The Indiana State Department of Health is reporting two more Hoosiers have died of severe lung injuries linked to a history of e-cigarette use or "vaping."

The two new deaths brings the state's total to three, tying Indiana with California for most deaths since Sept. 6 despite California having 33.3 million more residents. There have been 26 deaths confirmed nationwide in 21 states with more deaths now under investigation.

The deaths occurred in adults and were confirmed today by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. No additional details about the patients will be provided because of privacy laws.

"These deaths are heartbreaking," said Kris Box, the state health commissioner. "I urge anyone who is using these products to consider stopping, especially if you are vaping THC."

Indiana is now investigating 75 cases of severe lung injury linked to vaping, a total that has doubled in the past month. The majority of the cases have occurred among individuals ages 16 to 29. Nationwide, the Centers for Disease Control said 1,043 cases of severe lung injury linked to vaping are being investigated. Seventy percent of the patients are male and the median age is 24 years and ranges from 13 to 75 years with 80 percent of the patients younger than 35.

The median age of those who have died after vaping nationwide is 49 years but ranges from 17 to 75 years, the CDC said.

While most individuals have reported vaping THC, the ingredient found in marijuana, some individuals have reported vaping only nicotine. Indiana's health department continues to work with local and federal partners to gather information and learn more about potential causes of these lung injuries.

Symptoms for vaping-related lung injury can include cough, shortness of breath or chest pain, nausea, vomiting or diarrhea and fatigue, fever or abdominal pain. Anyone who has used an e-cigarette in the last 90 days who is experiencing these symptoms should stop vaping immediately and visit a healthcare provider.

More information about the state's investigation of vaping-related severe lung injuries is available online at www.in.gov/isdh/28337

Gov. Eric J. Holcomb and Indiana Department of Transportation Commissioner Joe McGuinness were both in Madison Thursday handing out big checks — both physically and monetarily — in the latest round of grants from Indiana's Next Level Roads: Community Crossings Initiative.

The state announced $99.2 million in state matching funds for local road projects to 229 Indiana cities, towns, and counties Thursday and a nice chunk of that money went to Jefferson and Switzerland counties in a ceremony at Madison's Lamplighter Park overlooking the Ohio River.

Jefferson County received a check for $987,940.90 — the awards are capped at $1 million — while Switzerland County picked up $189,150.

"High-quality local roads and bridges are an important part of our formula for attracting jobs, growing our economy and building strong communities," Gov. Holcomb told onlookers from the eight cities and three counties who picked up checks in the brief ceremony.

Speed, alcohol suspected in fatal accident

DOC driver undergoes surgery for broken legs

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Indiana State Police are investigating excessive speed and alcohol consumption as possible contributing factors in the Wednesday morning head-on collision that killed a Dupont man and seriously injured an Indiana Department of Corrections employee from Hanover.

State police responded to the two-vehicle, head-on crash on Michigan Road near Dawson Smith Road that killed Raymond S. Beagles, 63, Dupont, Indiana, and seriously injured Padget Davis, 51, Hanover, Indiana, at 3:40 a.m. on Wednesday.

The initial investigation by Trooper Andrew Garrett and the Indiana State Police Versailles-Crash Reconstruction Team has indicated that a silver 2009 Toyota Tacoma being driven by Beagles was traveling northbound on Michigan Road when the pickup crossed the centerline into the path of a southbound white 2011 Chevrolet van being driven by Davis. The vehicles collided head-on in the southbound lane of Michigan Road.

Beagles, who was not restrained in the vehicle when the crash occurred, suffered fatal injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene by the Jefferson County Coroner's Office. Beagles was trapped in the pickup and the cause of death has been ruled as blunt force trauma to the chest and abdomen.

Davis suffered possible life threatening injuries and was airlifted in serious condition to University of Louisville Hospital for treatment. Contacted at the hospital, Davis said she suffered two broken legs and a broken right foot and was scheduled for surgery Friday morning.

The Chevrolet van was owned by the Indiana Department of Corrections and Davis was on duty at the time of the crash transporting a work release inmate back to the Madison Women's Correctional Facility from her job locally. The inmate, who sustained minor injuries, was transported to King's Daughters' Hospital in Madison for treatment.

Davis, whose job is to transport correctional inmates to jobs at factories and businesses in Madison, Austin and Scottsburg, had just picked up the inmate from her job at nearby Madison Precision Products, located at 94 E. 400 N in Madison.

According to a report issued by the ISP Versailles Post, investigators believe Beagles had been consuming alcohol prior to the collision and that intoxication was a contributing factor to the crash. Investigators also believe that Beagles' speed was a contributing factor in the crash.

Davis said she remembers the violent crash in detail. "The pickup just flew right into the corner of my van," she said. "It was flying really fast."

Toxicology results are pending at this time — the coroner's offices expects to have results in 10-12 days — and the investigation into the accident is ongoing.

The Indiana State Police was assisted by the Jefferson County Sheriff's Office, Madison Police Department, Madison Township and Clifty Fire Departments, King's Daughters' Hospital EMS, Stat Flight Medical Helicopter, Jefferson County Coroner's Office and Stanley's Wrecker Service.

State gets $436M loan to finance water projects

Indiana

INDIANAPOLIS — A $436 million federal loan will help finance 28 wastewater and drinking water projects in 20 communities across Indiana, Gov. Eric Holcomb said Thursday as he and U.S. Environmental Protection Agency Administrator Andrew Wheeler were at the Statehouse to announce the loan through the Water Infrastructure Finance and Innovation Act. The funding supports projects that will deliver clean water and protect public health. Drinking water projects will include efforts to improve water treatment plants, storage tanks, distribution system components, wells and pump stations and water conservation measures. Wastewater projects will include efforts to increase capacity of wastewater treatment plants, tunnels to capture combined sewer overflows and collection systems. The loan will save the Indiana Finance Authority an estimated $20 million compared to typical bond financing.

Officer in racial bias allegations gets job

JEFFERSONVILLE — A white Kentucky police officer who resigned amid allegations of racial bias has been hired as an officer at a department in Indiana. News outlets report Jeffersonville, Indiana, police have hired former Louisville Metro police officer Kevin Crawford, who quit in June after being heavily criticized over a 2018 traffic stop of a black man. Body camera video showed Crawford stopping Tae-Ahn Lea for making a wide turn and then forcing the 18-year-old out of the car. Lea was frisked and handcuffed while his car was searched by a drug-sniffing dog and officers. Nothing was found and a related citation was ultimately dismissed. Three racial profiling lawsuits are pending against Crawford. Jeffersonville police Chief Kenny Kavanaugh, who is black, said he stands behind hiring Crawford.

Packaging plant fire emits toxic smoke

KENTLAND — Firefighters from five counties are battling a blaze at a packaging plant. WLFI-TV reported Kentland residents living near the International Cushioning Co. plant were asked to close their windows and stay away from the fire because of toxic smoke from the burning packing peanuts and bubble wrap that the plant produced. Kentland Fire Chief Matt Wittenborn said 15 employees were inside the plant when the fire began about 8:30 p.m. CDT Tuesday but all escaped safely, and no injuries have been reported. The 44,000-square-foot building is reported to be a total loss. It's at the intersection of U.S. Routes 24 and 41. Firefighters from Tippecanoe, Newton, White, Cass and Warren counties responded to the blaze. The cause of the fire is undetermined.

Man accuses dealership of discrimination

LAFAYETTE — A black former sales manager at a Mercedes-Benz dealership in northern Indiana is suing the business, saying he was fired in retaliation for complaining about the owner's repeated use of racist language and his boasts about overcharging African American customers. Jeffrey Turner filed a federal lawsuit Tuesday against Mike Raisor Auto Group's Mercedes-Benz dealership in Lafayette. Turner started working for Mercedes-Benz of North America in about 1987 and moved to Raisor's dealership in 2011, becoming sales manager in 2015, the suit said. An attorney for the dealership has declined to comment. Turner's suit seeks damages and a trial by jury.

Police searching for Henry murder suspect

EMINENCE, Ky. (AP) — Authorities were searching a wooded area near Mt. Eden in Shelby County Friday for a man wanted in connection with a murder and kidnapping on Thursday in Henry County. Terry Whitehouse, 37, is accused of killing an unidentified victim and kidnapping his own wife, 34-year-old Melinda Whitehouse, near Eminence. Police found Melinda Whitehouse alive on Friday after she was released. Police say Terry Whitehouse should be considered armed and dangerous. He was originally believed to be driving a white Chrysler Town & Country minivan but police now think he may be on foot and wearing a gray shirt and blue jeans with blood on them and carrying a knife and hammer. They are focusing their search in the woods around the 3200 block of Back Creek Road near Mt Eden. Eminence Police Sgt. John Bailey said an officer performing a welfare check discovered a man dead from severe head trauma early Thursday morning. Bailey said children who lived in the home where the body was found have been placed in Child Protective Services custody. Terry Whitehouse had recently been arrested for violating an emergency protection order and was released from the Shelby County Detention Center on Wednesday, according to Shelby Co. Sheriff Mark Moore.

STATE BRIEFS

Democrats file suit on voter 'inactive list'

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Democratic Party contends in a new lawsuit that the State Board of Elections placed 175,000 registered voters on an "inactive list," possibly infringing on their right to vote. The Lexington Herald-Leader reported Kentucky Democratic Party Chairman Ben Self said in a statement the party determined the lawsuit was necessary to prevent "unfair burdens" on voters. Races for governor and other statewide offices are on the Nov. 5 ballot. Jennifer Scutchfield, elections board assistant director, said it had no comment. Board Executive Director Jared Dearing said last month that no voters on the inactive list have been removed from the voter registration database. Officials have said voters on the list are eligible to vote in November. The lawsuit was filed Thursday in Franklin County Circuit Court. A request for a temporary injunction will be heard Monday.

Appeals Court appoints new clerk

FRANKFORT — Kentucky's Court of Appeals has appointed a new clerk. Rebecca Combs Lyon assumed the post Oct. 1. She's worked with the court for more than 30 years and has now become the first woman in the role since Kentucky's modern court system was created more than 40 years ago. Former Gov. Martha Layne Collins was clerk of the appeals court before the new system was implemented. The court said in a news release that Lyon has worked as an appellate staff attorney, civil motions panel attorney, deputy chief staff attorney and chief staff attorney. As clerk, she's now responsible for custody, control and storage of all appellate records. Lyon succeeds Samuel P. Givens Jr., who retired last month after 30 years with the court system.

Algae blooms in river stop triathlon swim

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Part of this weekend's Kentucky triathlon has been canceled over concern for a toxic algae bloom in the Ohio River. A statement by The Ironman Group says officials have determined after water testing that it is necessary to cancel the swim portion of Sunday's 2019 Ironman Louisville for athlete safety. Participants had been set to jump into waters near Towhead Island in Louisville before entering the Ohio River's main channel. The Kentucky Division of Water issued an advisory recently advising people to stay out of the river due to algal toxins. Officials said the advisory will remain in effect through at least Sunday. Contact with the blooms could cause stomach pain, vomiting, nausea, difficulty breathing and other issues such as skin irritation and limb tingling.

Lexington paper to end Saturday print

LEXINGTON — The Lexington Herald-Leader has told its readers that it will stop publishing a print edition on Saturdays early next year as it adapts to changes in how readers engage by reading more local news online. The newspaper said it plans to launch a Weekend Edition on Jan. 11 that includes expanded print newspapers on Fridays and Sundays, which will include items normally in the Saturday paper including comics, puzzles and sports. The note said it will continue to publish breaking news on Saturdays to its website and social media.

Teacher charged with being drunk at school

EVARTS — Authorities say a special education teacher was arrested and charged with being drunk in the parking lot of his workplace. News outlets report Matthew Hubbard was charged Tuesday with alcohol intoxication in a public place. Arrest citations say Harlan County deputies found Hubbard in the parking lot of Evarts Elementary School. The citation said Hubbard's speech was slurred and he smelled of alcohol. It said he refused a sobriety test. Harlan County schools superintendent said Hubbard worked at Evarts for two months and has been suspended pending the outcome of his case.

Arrest in use of pitchfork to stab man

STAMPING GROUND — A man is accused of stabbing a man with a pitchfork. The Lexington Herald-Leader reported Alan Covington, 69, was arrested Monday and charged with second-degree assault. An arrest citation said a Scott County sheriff's deputy responded to the Stamping Ground scene that afternoon and found a man who had a "substantial" amount of blood running down his leg. It said the two had argued about cardboard signs on Covington's gate, and Covington used the pitchfork he was holding to stab the man in the left leg. WKYT-TV reported deputies previously have dealt with arguments between the men over the same issue. The nature of the signs is unclear. Reports say the arguments are part of an ongoing property dispute. The citation says Covington told authorities he acted in self-defense.

Thief forced out by hotel clerk

PADUCAH — A hotel clerk managed to force a thief out of her workplace by grabbing a gun he set down on the check-in counter while stuffing cash into a bag. Security video obtained by news outlets shows an armed man with his face covered, demanding money from an employee at a Country Inn and Suites on Monday. In the video, she can be seen handing over bills as the suspect sets his gun down to collect them. That's when the clerk grabs the gun and turns it on him. The man tries hopping over the counter to reclaim the weapon but the employee continues pointing it at him until he flees into a waiting car.

Mich. trucker indicted in death of Bedford man

FRANKFORT (AP) — A Kentucky grand jury has indicted a Michigan man on murder charges stemming from a fatal crash in September that claimed the life of a Trimble County man on Interstate 64 near Frankfort.

Jerry Elder Jr., 45, of Flint, Michigan, was indicted by a Franklin County grand jury on one count of first-degree murder, second-degree assault and two counts of felony wanton endangerment.

Kentucky State Police said Elder crashed his fully-loaded tractor-trailer into two passenger vehicles near exit 58 on I-64 west because he was distracted by a video playing on his cellphone. The cellphone was mounted on his dashboard. In addition, Elder was also not wearing his prescription corrective lenses, which is required by his commercial driver's license and medical card, according to the arrest citation.

Jeffrey Curtis, 61, of Bedford, was dead at the scene.

Curtis was driving a Jeep Liberty that was rear-ended by Flint's truck and knocked into a Ford Explorer.

An investigation by Kentucky State Police Post 12 detectives and collision reconstruction units found that Elder also did not slow down while driving through a construction zone.

The driver of the Explorer, 61-year-old Trina Summers, suffered non-life-threatening injuries.

State funds awarded for Trimble road work

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff report

The Kentucky Department of Transportation has awarded $514,963 in state funds for three road work projects in Trimble County.

The money includes $394,063 for resurfacing and slide repair on portions of Coopers Bottom Road, $60,900 to the City of Milton for resurfacing Spring Street, Pyles Lane, Maple Street, Raker Road, Toleiha Lane, Bayne Street and High Street, and $60,000 to the City of Bedford for resurfacing on Pendleton Avenue, Alexander Avenue and Rowlett Avenue.

Resurfacing repairs address existing surface cracks, potholes, raveling, and base failures. Kentucky Gov. Matt Bevin came to Trimble County Thursday to the office of Judge-Executive Todd Pollock for the announcement was made. Bevin has made a priority of transportation infrastructure projects.

Applicants submitted requests to fund the projects to the Department of Rural and Municipal Aid. The requests were evaluated by the Kentucky transportation district staff to assess the condition of roads and determine the most critical needs. The cities and county are responsible for administering the projects and will be reimbursed by the state transportation department for the work.

Pollock identified Coopers Bottom Road as being among the most critical in the county.

"This discretionary funding will allow for the completion of some much needed projects around the county. It will free up tax dollars to be used in other areas of the county," Pollock said of the awards. "On behalf of the citizens of Trimble County, I want to express my gratitude for Gov. Bevin's commitment to beautify the bluegrass, especially my favorite part of rural Kentucky, Trimble County."

Bedford Mayor Joe Robinson expressed similar thanks.

"I want to express my extreme thanks to Gov. Matt Bevin and the State of Kentucky for the allocation of discretionary funding that we are going to receive to help with the infrastructure for our community," Robinson said. "We are a small city with not a lot of funding opportunities so this will be a monumental boost for us to continue growing and becoming a place people want to call home. "

• Big checks

"Our fully-funded Next Level Roads plan and record-breaking level of construction has gained Indiana national recognition for our approach to infrastructure and Community Crossings takes that commitment to the local level all across the state."

Jefferson County Highway superintendent Robert Phillips said the county sought funding to resurface about eight miles of roadways over four projects but not all of that work was approved, so he is now awaiting paperwork to see which work actually got funded.

"The program mainly targets arterial and connector roads," Phillips said, noting the purpose of the money is to improve transportation — especially roads that benefit commerce — by resurfacing key roads. "We try to request money for projects that are too big for us to handle. We do the patching and half-mile projects with our local money."

Switzerland County's request was for one big project — a 2.281-mile section of Jackson Road — that will now be resurfaced with 75 percent of the cost covered by Next Level Roads with the county providing the other 25 percent.

To qualify for funding, local governments must provide local matching funds — 50 percent for larger communities and 25 percent for smaller communities — from a funding source approved for road and bridge construction.

Holcomb was in town to present checks for the state's Next Level Roads: Community Crossings Initiative. (Courier staff photo by Mark Campbell)

They must also submit an INDOT-approved asset management plan for maintaining existing roads and bridges. State law requires annually that 50 percent of the available matching funds be awarded to communities within counties with a population of 50,000 or fewer.

Other governmental agencies that picked up checks Thursday in Madison included: City of Austin, $745,214.59; City of Clarksville, $300,395.25; Dearborn County, $999,884.00; City of Greendale, $610,794.94; City of Lawrenceburg, $556,834.67; City of Milan, $258,286.09; City of Osgood, $737,849.70; Scott County, $983,676.10; City of Sellersburg, 963,783.75; and City of Versailles, $316,371.49.

The Community Crossings Initiative has provided more than $612 million in state matching funds for construction projects. The latest round garnered more applications than dollars available — making the call for projects highly competitive. In response to local requests to help manage project flow, INDOT now accepts applications in both January and July, with a $1 million cap annually per community. An estimated $100 million will be available for communities opting to apply during the January 2020 call for projects.

"Efficiently and safely moving people and commerce is vital to the quality of life and vitality of our communities," said McGuinness. "INDOT is excited to partner with communities through this matching grant program to make infrastructure investments that contribute to the success of all Hoosier cities, towns, and counties."

INDOT builds and maintains more than 28,000 lane miles of highway and 5,600 bridges statewide, and provides oversight for 117 public aviation facilities and more than 4,000 miles of active rail lines. Indiana ranked as the No. 1 state in the U.S. for infrastructure in CNBC's 2016 "Top States for Business" ranking.

A list of all communities receiving matching funds in the 2019 July call for projects is online at www.in.gov/indot/communitycrossings

Firefighters hoping rain allows lift of burn ban

Courier staff report

Local firefighters are hoping that a huge storm front that's dumping rain across the Midwest and heading toward the Ohio River Valley will finally bring some relief to dry conditions and lower the risk of field fires this weekend.

The front was scheduled to arrive locally Friday night or early Saturday morning and for firefighters who have been on high alert for weeks, relief couldn't come soon enough.

Andrew Stark, a Milton firefighter and director of Trimble County Emergency Services, said if the storm lives up to projections, Trimble County could lift its ban on outdoor burning as early as Saturday morning, but for now the ban remains in place and residents should assume no changes until an official notice is given.

Troy Morgan, director at Jefferson County Emergency Management Agency, said he is happy to see rain back in the forecast, but that it would take a "deluge overnight" to affect a change in the county's ban on open burning.

"I hope we get 3 inches of rain overnight but we're not lifting the ban until conditions are much better than they are now," Morgan said on Friday.

Trimble County received three quarters of an inch of rain earlier in the week while Jefferson County got about a third of that total, when a rain front that was anchored farther to the south skirted by the area on Monday morning.

With the storm providing little relief, firefighters in Jefferson and Trimble counties continued to see increased calls for field fires and illegal burns. Trimble has gone on more than two dozen calls and Jefferson County nearly 50 since their bans went into place last month.

For updates on the burn bans, visit the Madison Courier's website at www.madisoncourier.com and follow the paper on Twitter @MadisonCourier.

3 southern Indiana judges face discipline in gun altercation

Courier staff report

INDIANAPOLIS — The Commission on Judicial Qualifications has filed disciplinary charges against three southern Indiana judges who were involved in a May 1 physical altercation in Indianapolis that resulted in two of the judges being shot.

Clark Circuit Court 1 Judge Andrew Adams, Crawford Circuit Court Judge Sabrina Bell and Clark Circuit Court 2 Judge Bradley Jacobs were separately charged with violating the Code of Judicial Conduct through a "Notice of the Institution of Formal Proceedings and Statement of Charges."

The allegations, brought by the seven-member Commission which investigates alleged ethical misconduct by judges, are public record and have been filed with the Appellate Clerk's Office.

The commission alleges misconduct related to the judges' behavior on May 1, while in attendance at a judicial education conference, which led to a physical altercation and resulted in Judges Adams and Jacobs being shot. Each judge has 20 days to file an answer to the charges.

Judge Adams is charged with three counts of misconduct and Judge Bell and Judge Jacobs are both charged with two counts of misconduct. Misconduct involves a violation of the Code of Judicial Conduct, which requires judges to act in a manner at all times that promotes public confidence in the integrity of the judiciary; and to not engage in extrajudicial activity that undermines a judge's integrity.

The Indiana Supreme Court has final authority to determine what, if any, judicial misconduct occurred. The court can dismiss the charges, accept or reject a disciplinary agreement between the commission and each of the judges, appoint a panel of judges to conduct a public hearing, impose a fine, orimpose sanctions ranging from a reprimand to a suspension to a permanent ban on holding judicial office in Indiana.

'Zombie' deer roam in 227 counties in 24 U.S. states

(Logansport) Pharos-Tribune

"Zombie" deer roam 227 counties across 24 states in the U.S., sickened by a neurodegenerative disease that reduces them to stumbling, drooling creatures.

So far, Indiana has evaded the infection known as chronic wasting disease — and state wildlife officials plan to keep it that way. However, surveillance areas have been set up in counties as near as Pulaski to keep a close eye on deer populations in the area.

During deer hunting season, Indiana Department of Natural Resources encourages hunters to stay informed about deer diseases and best practices for handling any carcass or other raw meat.

Chronic wasting disease is a serious neurological disease affecting white-tailed deer, mule deer, elk and moose. It is a member of a group of diseases called transmissible spongiform encephalopathies, or prion diseases. The wasting disease is fatal in these species.

Chronic wasting disease is spread through bodily fluids like feces, saliva, blood or urine. It is transmitted either through direct contact or indirectly through environmental contamination of soil, plants, food or water and is similar to mad cow disease in cattle and scrapie in sheep.

The symptoms of chronic wasting disease reduce infected animals to zombie-like creatures: stumbling, drooling, and drastic weight loss. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the deer can also become more aggressive and less afraid of humans.

Chronic wasting disease can incubate for more than a year before animals present symptoms. While there's a low risk of transmission to humans, the center for disease control warns hunters that the species barrier may not fully protect them from contracting the disease.

Although it has been associated with captive deer and elk in the past, Chronic Wasting Disease is also found in free-ranging white-tailed deer in several Midwestern states close to Indiana, including Michigan, Illinois and Wisconsin.

Each year, Indiana biologists and staff at the natural resources department fish and wildlife areas collect tissue samples from hunter-harvested and road-killed deer for chronic waste testing. Samples are collected from across the state to monitor the presence of Chronic Wasting Disease in Indiana. To date, the disease has not been detected in deer tested in Indiana.

Indiana is conducting targeted surveillance in northwest and northeast Indiana during the 2019-2020 deer hunting season. The natural resource department requests voluntary assistance from hunters in this effort. Participants will receive a commemorative Deer Management Partner magnet and a metal tag reminiscent of historic confirmation tags as tokens of appreciation.

In northwest Indiana, surveillance areas include Jasper, Lake, LaPorte, Newton, Porter, Pulaski and Starke counties.

Hunters from Indiana who hunt out of state and have a deer carcass that has tested positive for Chronic Wasting Disease should call Indiana's Deer Hotline at 812-334-3795 to discuss disposal options. To learn more about the disease and surveillance, see on.IN.gov/CWD

> Regardless of the harvest, hunters and trappers should adhere to the following best practices when field-dressing or handling any carcass or other raw meat: wear disposable gloves; always wash your hands afterward; clean and disinfect instruments after use; don't handle or consume wild animals that appear sick or act abnormal; cook meat thoroughly; and minimize contact with brain or spinal tissues.

Most advertised jobs in 8 counties of south central Indiana? Drivers

By EMILY ERNSBERGER
(Bloomington) Herald-Times

Though the area has a stable unemployment rate, more and more job openings are becoming available in an array of employment — but some of the most-advertised positions may not be as easy to guess as you think.

The Indiana Department of Workforce Development labor market report published last week detailed unemployment, job availability and applications sent for the month of August in the eight-county area.

Region 8, which includes Monroe, Brown, Daviess, Greene, Lawrence, Martin, Orange and Owen counties, typically has the same list of most-advertised jobs, with a rotating top position. For many places, that includes farm workers and manufacturing jobs.

But lately, the most advertised job as been categorized as taxi drivers and chauffeurs.

Few listings for pure "taxi drivers" or "chauffeurs" were available in that time frame on Indiana Career Connect, job posting database by the Department of Workforce Development. But multiple delivery driving jobs are available across the entire region — specifically through DoorDash, in which drivers choose when to pick up and deliver food on their own time, and with Pizza Hut. In the past 60 days, 340 listings have been posted, representing 420 openings just in the eight-county area.

Representatives from the Department of Workforce Development did not comment by deadline.

Along with delivery drivers, hotel van operators, nursing home transportation coordinators and rental car chauffeurs, package drivers for the United Parcel Service and multiple truck drivers are a part of the larger "driver" job postings.

Registered nurses, production workers, health care practitioners and farm workers are the top five most advertised jobs in the region right now, according to the report.

Indiana Career Connect currently indicates that 4,450 job openings are available in the region. Indiana University Health and Indiana University have the most job openings, with 187 and 182 postings, respectively.

For every job opening, there are 2.46 candidates, according to Indiana Career Connect.

But the most applied-for jobs include assemblers, production workers, cashiers, helpers to production workers and customer service representatives. This has been the case since August 2018.

Note of Thanks

From the Family of

Damon Lee Welch:

We would like to express our gratitude to the people of Madison for such a sweeping demonstration of compassion and love in light of the death of our beloved husband and father, Damon Welch. We have received countless phone calls, text messages, cards, gifts, and an abundance of food. Many of you provided housing for our family members and friends who traveled from out-of-town to attend the funeral. While we dealt with such a sudden and public loss, you met so many of our needs, and for all of this we are deeply grateful. We want to highlight the immense support of City Hall, as well as the various city departments and churches that have done so much to show us what Damon meant to them; and thank you to the first responders and the ER staff at King's Daughters' Hospital. Finally, thank you to interim Mayor Dan Dattilo, who has been placed in a difficult and daunting position. We call on the people of Madison to support him, as well as whomever the Republican caucus appoints in the coming week and the victor of the upcoming general election. We are so proud of the work Damon did as the mayor of this great city and humbled by the honor that has been shown to him. He loved Madison. You have loved him well in return. Thank you.

Hoosiers wrestle with jail issues

A 2017 inspection by the state found the current Jefferson County Jail not in compliance with state regulations. That inspection originally gave county officials 180 days to make an action plan to correct the non-compliance. The Greenfield Daily Reporter, in an April 2019 story about Hancock County's struggle to deal with building a new jail, reported the Indiana Sheriffs' Association had estimated that 96 percent of jail cells statewide are full. Forty to 45 counties are looking at building new jails or renovating existing facilities, the association said. (Courier staff photo by Mark Campbell)

Jefferson County jail RFPs due Oct. 22

Courier staff report

The requests for proposals for architectural and design work on Jefferson County's new jail have been sent out and responses are due Oct. 22.

County Commissioner David Bramer updated his colleagues Thursday night at a regular commission meeting, noting that the jail committee still is working out details on the new facility, which is planned to be 300 beds and cost about $36.7 million. The final vote to move forward with the project came in September after an August vote to authorize purchase of 50 acres of land on Madison's hilltop as the site.

The jail will be financed by two new income taxes. The first new tax is a countywide tax, referred to as a local income tax, that would be used only for the jail. The proposed rate for that tax is 0.20 percent. The second tax, also a local income tax, but this one under public safety, must be approved by and shared with the other incorporated entities in the county — Madison, Hanover, Brooksburg and Dupont. The proposed rate for that tax is 0.35 percent.

County commissioners and council members have been given a bottom line figure of $36,727,272 for a new jail. That figure is based on the best estimates now available and includes, among other things, hard construction costs, architectural/engineering costs, the land costs and capitalized interest and costs associated with the bonds that will be necessary to finance the project. When the RFPs come back Oct. 22, some costs that have been estimated will be readjusted.

In August, the Jefferson County Council approved the purchase of 50 acres adjoining JA Berry Lane on Madison's hilltop to build a new jail. (Courier file photo)

Johnson County gives final expansion OK for jail; $20M to $25M expected

By MAGEN KRITSCH
Daily Journal of Johnson County

A long-awaited and much-needed expansion of the Johnson County jail has been given the final approval it needs, and county officials can now look for a company to do the work.

The Johnson County Board of Commissioners unanimously approved plans for the expansion during a special meeting on Monday. The addition to the existing jail was designed by RQAW Corp., a Fishers-based architecture and engineering firm.

Now, the county will use the approved plans to solicit bids for the multi-million dollar expansion. The county will likely select a contractor next month, and construction is expected to begin next spring. The expansion will take a year to a year and a half to complete, commissioner Kevin Walls said.

The exact cost of the jail will not be known until a bid is accepted during a public meeting, Walls said. Latest estimates put the cost between $20 million and $25 million, and the Johnson County Council passed a local income tax earlier this year to pay for the expansion. It took effect last week.

For years, county officials and multiple sheriffs have grappled with how to address a chronic overcrowding issue at the jail. In 2010, voters rejected a $23 million referendum that would have added 400 beds to the existing 322 beds at the jail on Hospital Road in Franklin. Since then, the state has ordered the county to remedy the jail's overcrowding issues.

A committee made up of county leaders, judges and law enforcement professionals who spent years studying how to fix the jail overcrowding decided expanding the existing facility would be the best option.

The expansion includes adding 264 beds in a new wing of the jail and pull-in bays for arresting officers, and revamping the intake and medical areas of the jail.

The expansion's main feature is a new building that will be built to the west of the existing jail, connected by a walkway. The addition will include about 74 new cells on two floors. Those cells will be designed to hold two, four or six inmates, depending on size, Walls said.

The expansion will also feature a central command center, which is a raised tower in the middle of all the cells so jail workers can monitor and see all the inmates at all times, Walls said.

Medical rooms and a three bay pull-in for arresting officers is also being added. The jail's intake center will also be revamped as part of the plans.

Jennings County rescinds jail tax since it will not be building a new facility

North Vernon Plain Dealer & Sun

With little fanfare, the Jennings County Council on Tuesday rescinded the controversial jail tax.

It was no surprise whatsoever that the vote was unanimous. All seven councilors — Mike Gerth (R-District 1), Mandy Creech (R-District 2), Bob Ellis (R-District 3), Charlie Weber (R-District 4), Howard Malcomb (R-at large), Paul Belding (R-at large) and Dave Woodall (R-at large) — have been voicing their desire for months to abolish the special income tax.

"Obviously we are not going to build a new jail," said Malcomb, the council president, before the vote. "We have a work-release program starting next year (in partnership with Jackson County and the City of Seymour) and there is a new state program that will take the Level 6 felons. Plus, more beds have been added to our jail."

Jennings County's jail tax — which has a rate of .65 percent of gross adjusted income for all county residents — has been in effect since Jan. 1.

The tax will go off the books on Dec. 31, by which time $3.1 million in revenue will have been generated.

That money will then be transferred to the county's Rainy Day Fund as is required by state law.

"We want to keep that amount locked in the Rainy Day Fund until we approve how that money is to be used," Creech said, making that part of her motion to rescind the jail tax.

Knox County looks to reinstate 'jail tax' to expand facility

By Jenny McNeece
Vincennes Sun-Commercial

The Knox County Council is looking to reinstate the so-called jail tax in an effort to add on, both to the jail itself and, possibly, to the county's community corrections facility as well.

Council president Bob Lechner said while the jail, built back in 2003, has served the county well, they've simply outgrown it. It was built to house around 200 inmates, but Sheriff Doug Vantlin said it's currently housing nearly 270 men and women.

Even if he kicked out the federal and state inmates being held here — a service that has brought into the county nearly $4 million in revenue since the jail opened, Lechner said — it would still be overpopulated.

And it's not a problem specific to Knox County, Vantlin said, as nearly 40 other Hoosier counties are either in the process of building new jails, expanding the ones they have or in discussions to do one or the other.

The proposal, Lechner said during the council's meeting Tuesday, is to essentially double the size of the jail; the existing pods — one each for general population, individual cells, isolation, etc. — would be mirrored as part of the expansion project. Additional updates, too, would need to be made to the jail's HVAC system, laundry facilities, etc. to keep up.

The jail population continues to climb, Lechner pointed out, so the council has a decision to make — be "proactive" now or "reactive" later.

After much discussion, the council voted to move toward reinstating the "jail tax," or an increase to the local income tax. This time around, the county is proposing it at a rate of 0.2%, according to county attorney Andrew Porter.

They will hold a public hearing on the proposed tax increase at 5 p.m. on Oct. 24 at City Hall, 201 Vigo St., and in an effort to move swiftly, they plan to vote on the increase that same evening.

To implement the new tax rate on Jan. 1, 2020, the county must approve the ordinance by Oct. 31. If they do so after that date, the increase wouldn't take effect until Oct. 1, 2020.

The money to pay for the new jail came from an increase in the county's Economic Development Income Tax; the legislation, approved in 2003, mandated that it be eliminated once enough money had been collected to retire the debt.

County elected officials promised to pay off the jail early, and early it was paid off. The bonds weren't due to be paid off until 2021, and in the process of paying the debt off early, they saved county taxpayers more than $1 million.

The jail tax, initially set at a rate of 0.25 percent, was eliminated in 2014 by county elected officials, but the bonds themselves couldn't be paid off until early 2016.

The last step was in handing the deed to the jail over to the county commissioners, which was done in August of that same year. The county council didn't talk specific cost estimates for the work, but Lechner said the expansion would require more jail bonds to be sold, hence the proposed tax increase.

Council members, for the most part, said they were ready — and even eager — to move forward with the increase and subsequent jail expansion. Not only is the jail currently overcrowded, but more space means more income from housing both state and federal inmates.

That revenue, Lechner pointed out, helps to keep the tax rate lower for residents.

Commission president Kellie Streeter said the commissioners had discussed the expansion at length and were also in favor of it.

"I think we're all three in agreement," she said. "We understand the issues and the future problems that are possible.

"A solution is necessary," she said, "and that means building onto the jail."

County councilman Tim Crowley, a former judge, wants to see more than just a jail expansion, however.

If the county is going to raise the tax rate, he wants to see some of the revenue spent to expand the work release facility, too. That building is overcrowded as well, he said, and there are waiting lists for both men and women.

As judges continue to look at alternatives to incarceration for low-risk defendants, the county should do its part, he said.

"What's the point of having work release if you don't have a place to put them?" he asked, adding that an expansion there is also "something we should consider."

Madison board gives approval for 2020 budget

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff report

Madison Consolidated Schools trustees Wednesday night unanimously approved the system's budget for 2020, including a facilities improvement project that will see roof replacements on multiple buildings.

The new budget sets aside $37,647,093 for the 2020 school year, of which more than $4 million will be used to pay off existing bond payments, according to a presentation from municipal advisory firm Baker Tilley at the meeting.

The school has not published a complete budget, but handouts given at Wednesday's meeting indicate the 2019 facilities project will cost the owner of a median-valued home ($120,000) about $12 a year until 2029. The district starts payments on bonds for the 2019 project next year.

This year's budget also sets aside a one percent raise in teacher pay, said Diana Wehner, president of the Madison Teacher's Association and a special education teacher at Anderson Elementary. In addition, the district is covering increases in teachers' incurance rates, some of which were up to five percent this year, she said.

Superintendent Jeff Studebaker said the facilities plan will see a complete roof replacement at Deputy Elementary and Madison Consolidated Jr. High. Portions of Madison Consolidated High School, namely the main gym, kitchen and cafeteria, are the sections "most egregiously leaking" and will also benefit from roof repairs, Studebaker said.

Also at the junior high, the outside piping that powers the school's HVAC will receive new insulation, along with aluminum casing around the insulation to encapsulate the pipes.

The plan also covers more minor maintenance issues, like the LED lighting that will soon replace flourescent and incandescent lights in all buildings. This includes the majority of athletic facilities, but not all, Studebaker said.

In other business, the board also elected to give Cherry Drive, the short road connecting Michigan Road to Anderson Elementary, back to the City of Madison. The road has always been part of Anderson's campus, but the city has long done all the paving, maintenance and snow plow work on it, Studebaker said. The city paid for the recent extension to the road and a new water drain when MCS renovated Anderson this past year.

Studebaker clarified that the district is only giving the city the portion that starts from the original U-shaped entrance, which doesn't include the cul-de-sac area with the gate, the portion that goes behind the school building, the parking lot or the easement on both sides of Cherry Drive. This still lets the district control and maintain the Cherry Drive gate, which has proven critical for safety, Studebaker said. When the school opens the gates in the afternoons after school, they usually see cars "flying through there," he noted.

The school board approved a $41,780 paving project to lay new asphalt on the driveway around Anderson Elementary. Contractor All Star Paving will oversee the work.

In his report at the end of the meeting, Studebaker brought up the contributions of the late Mayor Damon Welch, who died unexpectedly Sept. 25. He said Welch was intrumental in helping complete the Anderson Elementary project and fostered a better relationship between the city and the district.

"I don't think we can overstate the importance of what Mayor Welch was to the city as well as the school district," Studebaker said. "He and I were trying to establish a relationship between the city and the school district that was based off mutual trust and respect. We both believed that the role of government is to help those who we're charged with serving, and it doesn't make any sense for governmental agencies to knock heads and work either in parallel with one another or in competition with one another...I also want to thank the folks who are carrying on down at City Hall. They could have put the brakes on everything that the mayor was working on after he passed, but they felt that it was part of the mission to finish everything they had been going through and doing."

Board member Joyce Imel echoed Studebaker's sentiment on the late mayor.

"He was such an advocate for our students, and that's evident in so many ways," she said.

A stand on state testing

Madison Consolidated Schools trustees also approved a resolution Wednesday night titled, "End the Overuse and Misuse of Standardized Testing," in light of poor results from the new ILEARN test and constant changes in standardized testing in Indiana.

The resolution expresses support for locally developed assessments of student learning and calls on state government to develop a system that relies less on extensive testing and more on multiple forms of evidence.

It also says "the over-emphasis on standardized testing has caused considerable collateral damage in too many schools, including narrowing down the curriculum, teaching to the test, reducing love of learning, pushing students out of school, driving excellent teachers out of the profession, and undermining school climate. ..."

The resolution also calls on the U.S. Congress and administration to overhaul the Secondary Education Act, or "No Child Left Behind," reduce testing mandates and "promote multiple forms of evidence of student learning and school quiality."

The ILEARN test scores released in September were a 13 percentage-point drop from last year. The statewide passing rate was 37.1 percent.

"The ILEARN test is just another example of waste, and a top-down bureacracy that just doesn't get it," said Studebaker at the time.

"The amount of money we spend on these tests and the outcomes are not indicative of what kids are able to do," Studebaker said. "It is shocking that we as a state are allowing the legislature to spend this kind of money on a test that doesn't get us the information that we need and it's not useful."

Southwestern Sup. Jeff Bates said it is a challenge for teachers to meet new test standards because it's hard for him or for the teachers to know what to emphasize to prepare for the test.

"You're kind of throwing darts and hoping you hit the bullseye, but you don't really know what the bullseye is," Bates also said when the results became known.

Zach Forner's uncanny ability to stop penalty kicks showcased itself at the right time to help lead Madison to an exciting 1-0 shootout victory over Charlestown in the Class 2A Boys Soccer Sectional semifinals at Madison on Wednesday.

Forner, who has been stopping those kicks all season as goalie for the Cubs, thwarted two of Charlestown's three attempts in the final extra session. Powered by goals from Carson Denton, Grant Smith and Hugo Bravo, it was enough to send Madison into the championship game on Saturday.

"We probably practice them about 10 percent of the practices, maybe two days all year. It's literally just luck," Forner said. "Credit to my coach (Kyle Bipes), he told me where to go. He had charted them down in the earlier game they played and it worked out tonight."

RISING SUN — Matty Anderson cut through the defense and made a spectacular play while hurdling the Rising Sun goalie to score what proved to be the winning goal in the 74th minute and lead Switzerland County to a 2-1 victory over the rival Shiners in the semifinals of the Class A Girls Soccer Sectional at Rising Sun on Thursday.

Anderson, a senior, has used her speed to create shots all season and once again showcased that athleticism on the winning goal. Breaking past the Rising Sun defense, Anderson gathered up the ball just past the stripe and sped down the field where she faced Shiner keeper Kieran Groover one-on-one. Dribbling right up to Groover, Anderson flipped the ball over the goalie's head, as she herself went into the air, and into the net.

"I saw somebody coming in from the right and the goalie coming in (straight-ahead) and I knew that I had to go opposite goal," Anderson said. "I

OSGOOD — Southwestern and Switzerland County battled to a 1-1 tie just two weeks ago but with the two teams facing the same score in Wednesday's IHSAA Class A Boys Soccer Sectional 45 semifinal at Jac-Cen-Del, a winner had to emerge.

In the end, the two teams needed extra time to determine that winner with Southwestern breaking the tie on a go-ahead goal and hanging on the rest of the way for a 2-1 overtime win over the Pacers.

The Rebels, winners of just their second game of the season, now find themselves within a game of a sectional championship.

"We're playing a completely different game," Southwestern head coach Kevin Dillman said. "Teams have not played us the way we are playing now. We pass the ball more and we are playing defense. We have started playing a controlled game and we are starting to see it work for us. We are coming into it."

SCOTTSBURG — Madison went toe-to-toe against a heavily-favored North Harrison squad on Thursday but in the end the Cougars escaped the upset bid by scoring a late goal to survive 2-1 over the Cubs in the IHSAA Class 2A Girls Soccer Sectional 31 semifinals.

North Harrison (12-2-2) spent much of the season ranked in Class 2A and was considered by many to be an overwhelming favorite to win a sectional championship. Regardless, Madison never let the challenge bother them and put the Cougars on the ropes until the latter portion of the second half.

"Their (North Harrison) only two losses have been to state ranked teams in Indiana and Kentucky," Madison head coach Janet Hertz said. "To come out and compete with them and having our kids believe was the biggest thing. On paper we should have lost by six goals. In reality we played with them until one last scrum. At the end of the day our kids are proud and I'm proud

Hanover, 7-1 overall and 6-1 in the Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference, hosts Manchester and Lawrence Tech on Saturday.

Volleyball sweeps MSJ

Hanover College volleyball swept Mount St. Joseph in straight sets to claim its fifth-straight win on Wednesday at home.

The Panthers won 25-17, 27-25 and 25-20.

Adrianne Vance had 15 kills to lead Hanover while Ally Williams had 30 digs. As a team, the Panthers hit a .208 clip.

Hanover, now 13-5 overall and 2-0 HCAC, travels to Ohio Wesleyan on Saturday where it will take on the host Battling Bishops as well as Hiram. The Panthers then visit Transylvania next Wednesday.

Women beat Franklin

Hanover got a goal from Kelsey Hughes in the 95th minute of overtime to beat Franklin 2-1 in women's soccer Wednesday at home.

The Panthers jumped out to a quick lead when Ruby Kate Gray scored in the eighth minute and held that lead until the 65th minute when Franklin's Jalynn Gorman tied the scored. The contest eventually went into overtime where Hughes scored the game-winner.

Hanover held a 17-13 advantage in overall shots but shots on goal were tied at 10-10. The Panther goalkeeper Amanda Carmosino stopped nine shots in goal.

Hanover, now 5-4-1 overall and 2-0 HCAC hosts Earlham on Saturday and travels to Rose-Hulman next Wednesday.

Men defeat Franklin

Hanover men's soccer scored two goals in an 11-minute span in the second half to pull out a 3-2 victory over Franklin Wednesday on the road.

The Panthers led 1-0 early after a goal by Like Eppler in the ninth minute but Franklin surged ahead with goals by Mason May in the 35th minute and Jordan Thomas in the 51st minute to lead 2-1.

Hanover finally tied the match on a marker by Carlos Schryver in the 61st minute and then added the game-winner, also by Eppler, in the 72nd minute.

Hanover held an overwhelming 22-5 advantage in shots for the game, but only 9-4 on goal. Chris Brashear stopped two shots in goal for the Panthers.

Hanover, now 4-5-1 overall and 1-1 HCAC, hosts conference rival Earlham Saturday and hosts Rose-Hulman next Wednesday in the fourth of ninth straight league games to close the regular season.

Shawe volleyball falls to Rising Sun

COURIER STAFF REPORT
sports@madisoncourier.com

Shawe volleyball closed out the home portion of its schedule with a three-set loss to Rising Sun on Wednesday.

The Hilltoppers lost 25-19, 25-17, 25-23 but coach Tim Torrance was pleased with his team's effort.

"It was probably one of the most consistent nights of volleyball we had all season even though we dropped the decision in straight sets," Torrance said. "I'm hoping tonight's effort continues for the rest of the season."

Shawe served at 90 percent as a team for the match, led by Phoebe Grote who was 16-for-16 with an ace and Emmaline Leatherman who was 13-for-14. Lina Leatherman had seven blocks and three kills and Grace McAllister had five kills.

"We had better floor movement from our back row players tonight and our coverage was much better," Torrance said. "We didn't block very well this evening even though we had a lot of touches we couldn't finish the block to score the point."

Shawe, now 4-17 overall and 0-5 in the Ohio River Valley Conference, was to travel to South Ripley on Thursday for its final regular-season match of the season. The Hilltoppers then take on Rock Creek in the opening round of the Class A Sectional at South Central on Thursday, Oct. 17.

wanted to make it in so I went out and I just crossed it in."

"I thought she made one dribble too many," said Tully Anderson, Matty's father and head coach. "She got to the 18 and I knew it was a goal, but then I thought she took one dribble too many. But she made a great shot."

The goal decided what was shaping up to be a stalemate between two border rivals.

Switzerland (9-3-4) had taken a 1-0 lead less than two minutes into the game on a Raylinn Kappes goal but the Pacers could do little else against a Rising Sun defense that clamped down on the Swiss scoring chances.

The Shiners, meanwhile, broke through Switzerland's normally stout defense with a goal in the 24th minute when Hannah Warr collected a rebound off the hands of Pacer keeper Deanna Voris and put it into the net.

Tully Anderson wasn't at all pleased with his team's play in the first half but adjustments allowed the Pacers to dominate the next 40 minutes.

"We usually attack with two wings but we put Kayley Jones in the middle and tried to work through balls through their defense," Tully Anderson said. "We had to draw (defender Kinsey) Price to one side with our two wings and that's kind of what happened."

The victory sends the Pacers onto Saturday's championship game for the second-straight year where they will once again face 13th-ranked Oldenburg. The Twisters beat Milan 5-0 in the first semifinal on Thursday.

"Oldenburg is a good team. We watched a little of the first game and hopefully the girls didn't get intimidated," Tully Anderson said. "But they were watching and telling me what Oldenburg was doing and teams in the past haven't done that. We've got a knowledgeable team and we hope to give them a good game."

of them."

North Harrison led 1-0 at halftime on a goal by Gabrielle Scott but Madison quickly struck for the equalizer to put the Cougars on notice early in the second half. Harper Watson sprinted past the defense and booted a shot into the back of the net for the score with 37:45 remaining in the match and the 1-1 tie remained for the next 24 minutes.

But that's when the Cougars found a way to survive the Cubs. With 13:32 left in the match, an initial kick bounced off of Cub goalie Abby Ferguson. But with Ferguson on the ground, Cassie Dossett grooved a rebound and follow up kick right down the middle to find the net for the go-ahead score. Madison was unable to connect on a match-tying goal in the remaining time.

"That one last scrum gave them the game-winner," Hertz said of the goal. "It was unfortunate. We got that goal just two minutes and some change into the second half and we thought that really set the bar. We scored the equalizer and that really changed the momentum up until that goal. But can't fault our kids for the effort they gave tonight."

Madison spent a good portion of the evening attacking the net, racking up 20 shots with 13 on goal including eight shots on goal in the first half. North Harrison just barely out-shot the Cubs on the night with 22 shots and 18 shots on goal. The Cougars held a 2-0 advantage on corner kicks and had five fouls to Madison's eight.

North Harrison goalie Chloe Sieg had 12 saves in the match but it was Ferguson in the Madison net who came up big again and again throughout the evening with 16 saves to once again draw praise from her head coach for her efforts.

"She's been outstanding and she's only been a goalie since this past April," Hertz said of Ferguson. "She's a very coachable kid and she was somebody who stepped up for us when we didn't have a goalie. She wants to help the team and that's impressive in itself. She's done really well."

North Harrison faces Corydon Central in Saturday's championship game after Corydon defeated Salem 4-3 in a shootout.

Madison finishes the season at 6-9-3.

half while Southwestern was unable to convert on six shots on goal so the 1-1 tie carried over into a pair of seven-minute overtime periods. But within the first frame of overtime, the Rebels were finally able to break through.

Kaden Zellers found open space at the five-minute mark and drilled a ball that took a bounce off the right post and appeared to be heading toward the hands of outstretched Switzerland County goalie Dallas Snider. Instead, the ball took a bounce behind the Pacers' goalkeeper and a second bounce of the ball off Snider's foot allowed it to slip in for the game-winning goal.

The Pacers were never able to respond through the rest of the 14-minute overtime. Switzerland County was held to just four shots in the extra session with only one shot on goal as the Rebels defended their lead and were able to control the ball en route to the win.

"Kaden (Zellers) was on the wing and was able to get out in front," Dillman said of the game-winning goal. "He is extremely fast and he knows if he waits a little and takes off, he can outrun anybody in our sectional and that's what he was able to do. It worked for him."

For Switzerland County, the misfortune of the game-winning goal bouncing off the foot of Snider did not take away from his efforts throughout the evening. Head coach Brian Grigsby was quick to point out Snider's 11-save evening was a big reason for the match going into overtime in the first place.

"It's just soccer and that's life," Grigsby said. "Everybody just kept fighting until the end and that's what you want. Dallas (Snider) came up big Tuesday night and again tonight. Just what a bad break when it came to that ball bouncing off his foot. If it had bounced any other way then he would have had it but it just bounced their way. It was a great game."

Switzerland County scored first and led 1-0 with 22:40 left in the first half when J.W. Goldsberry's free kick landed in the back of the net but Southwestern responded just a little over five minutes later when Brandon Smith received a pass from Zellers and kicked the tying goal at the 17:29 mark. Each team had four shots on goal in the first half and eight shots total.

"We knew this was going to be a tight game," Grigsby said. "There was no way we were thinking anything but a tight game. It was tight in the regular season and with Southwestern getting the bye, we knew they were going to be ready. Both teams were ready to play tonight and Southwestern just got us. That's just soccer."

Southwestern (2-12-3) faces host Jac-Cen-Del (15-1-2) Saturday at 2 p.m. The ninth-ranked Eagles defeated Rising Sun 4-1 in the second semifinal on Wednesday night and swept the regular season series over the Rebels by scores of 4-1 and 9-1.

"They (Jac-Cen-Del) are an extremely good team," Dillman said. "We are going to have to be ready for these guys but we are confident and we know what to do in order to win. We are ready to go."

Switzerland County finishes the season at 4-10-2.

one the two teams had played early in the season when Madison took advantage of a young Charlestown team and rolled to a 7-0 win.

The Pirates were determined not to allow Madison to get out and run again and kept a player back on defense at all times to slow the Cub attack. The move worked and through 80 minutes of regulation and two seven minute overtime periods, neither team could find the goal.

While Madison's players were showing signs of frustration by the overtime sessions, they were all business when it came time to shootout. Denton nailed his first attempt and after Charlestown missed wide on its first, the Cubs were in the driver's seat.

Smith and Bravo each hit on the next two shots but it was Forner who iced the win, stopping the next two Pirate attempts to set off a wild celebration.

"I wanted to kick first and I wanted to put up a goal early to get our kids' heads high and ready to go," Bipes said. "These boys played hard for 94 minutes, played through some adversity and had a couple of cards that weren't necessary, but I tried to get the boys fired up every way that I could."

After scoring seven goals on Charlestown earlier in the season, Madison managed only three shots on goal on Wednesday. The Pirates held a 15-14 overall advantage in shots, including 8-3 on goal, but Forner stopped all eight attempts that came his way.

"All year I've told my defense, 'I save you and you save me. We both look good,'" Forner said. "The thing is, they're junior, junior, sophomore and freshman. They're all going to be back next year and that's a great feeling."

Charlestown actually ended up missing four penalty kicks in the game but the first was the most costly. The Pirates were awarded a PK with 26 minutes to play in regulation, but the attempt went far over the crossbar and was never a threat to go in.

Madison likewise missed a chance to win the game before the shootout when Gonzalo Lobato's rocket banged off the crossbar midway through the second half.

In addition to the shots, Charlestown held a 7-1 advantage in corner kicks while Madison was whistled for 18 fouls and two yellow cards to 15 fouls and one card by the Pirates.

Madison will now take on Scottsburg in the championship match at 2 p.m. Saturday. The Warriors likewise won in a shootout in the first semifinal, beating Silver Creek 1-0.

Scottsburg comes into the game with a stellar 12-1-2 record but that one loss was a 6-2 setback to Madison last month. Bipes knows that the earlier game doesn't mean a thing this time around.

"We did beat them pretty good before but Scottsburg has improved all season long. (Coach) Brandon Jerrell has done a tremendous job with them," Bipes said. "They're resilient, they fight, they're physical, which is what we like, so hopefully come Saturday we're going to have a good game. But at four o'clock, I want to be holding a trophy."

SW volleyball drops finale

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Southwestern wrapped up the regular-season portion of its volleyball schedule with a five-set loss at home to Henryville on Thursday.

The two teams took turns winning the first four sets with Southwestern taking the opener 25-22 and the third set 27-25 and Henryville claiming the second set, 25-20, and the fourth, 25-7. The Hornets then won the fifth set 15-10.

"Tonight was very up and down. We struggled covering some of Henryville's attacks at different points during the game and our offense had moments of being very solid and other moments where we couldn't get into a rhythm," Southwestern coach Chris Johnson said. "Difficult match to lose but we did see some positive things tonight also."

Kylie Eccles had 15 kills on 47-for-50 hitting, Elle Ford had 11 kills on 35-for-40 hitting and three aces on 12-for-12 serving, Marissa Naylor had 10 kills on 37-for-44 hitting and three aces on 16-for-16 serving, and Ashleigh Ream was 36-for-38 passing with 23 digs.

Southwestern ends the regular season with an 18-13 record. The Rebels will take on the winner between Switzerland County and North Decatur in the Class 2A Sectional at South Ripley on Saturday, Oct. 19.

Harlan Hubbard exhibit

2019 Hanover College grad helps curate artwork display

Courier staff report

Hanover College is honoring the life and work of Ohio River Valley treasure Harlan Hubbard during a special exhibition in the Duggan Library.

Titled "Harlan Hubbard, Life as Art," this exhibition will officially open to the public at 2 p.m. Oct. 19. A celebrated artist and writer, Hubbard was revered in the region for his practice of sustainable living. Along with his wife, Anna, the couple led a modest existance on the banks of the Ohio River for more than 40 years.

The Hubbards lived off the land with no electricity or running water in their shantyboat or rustic cabin constructed at Payne Hollow, Kentucky. Hubbard spent most of his life creating art, including paintings, watercolors and woodcuts. He was born Jan. 4, 1900, enrolled in a life-drawing class at the Cincinnati Art Academy in 1919 and studied art at the National Academy of Design in New York from 1919 to 1921 and in 1925.

Hubbard's work is generally characterized by rustic images and handmade frames that were often constructed from driftwood and other materials found on the river bank. He is credited with creating more than 1,000 pieces. The College's collection of his works, curated by 2019 Hanover graduate Hannah Miller, includes 31 pieces and will be on permanent display in the Duggan Library.

The exhibition will begin Oct. 19 with an opening ceremony that will feature comments by Robert Rosenthal and Jessica Whitehead. Rosenthal is professor emeritus of philosophy and a longtime Hubbard scholar. Whitehead, a 2011 Hanover graduate, has done extensive thesis work on the artist.

Hubbard was presented with the Kentucky Arts Council's Artist Award for Lifetime Achievement from Gov. Martha Layne Collins in December 1986. He died Jan. 16, 1988, after a five-year battle with cancer.

"Harlan Hubbard, Life as Art" features 31 pieces of artwork that will be on display in the Duggan Library at Hanover College.

Hanover Theatre presents 'Eurydice'

Courier staff reoport

Hanover College Theatre is presenting "Eurydice," a modern retelling of the tragic love story of Orpheus and Eurydice. from Oct. 18 to Oct. 20 at The Other Place at Hanover College.

Written by Sarah Ruhl, "Eurydice" is a modern retelling of the tragic love story of Orpheus, the mythological Greek musician, poet and prophet, and his wife, Eurydice. Told from the bride's point of view, a wedding-day accident plunges Eurydice into the underworld, where she is reunited with her deceased father. Orpheus then ventures into the realm to bring his wife back to life. She, however, is emotionally torn by remaining with her father or returning to the living.

"Eurydice" was first staged in 2003 at the Madison Repertory Theatre in Madison, Wisconsin, and later opened Off-Broadway at New York City's Second Stage Theatre in 2007. Ruhl's work received numerous award nominations in 2008, including the Drama League Award, Distinguished Production of a Play, Drama Desk Award and Outstanding Set Design of a Play.

General admission tickets are free and patrons are encouraged to reserve seats online in advance. Tickets are available at hanover.edu/arts and can be printed or scanned upon entry from a barcode on mobile phones.

BRIDGE

WOULD AN ALIEN FIND THE BEST PLAY?

One of my favorite television comedies was "Third Rock From the Sun." It featured four aliens who had taken on human form and called themselves the Solomons. The commander was played by John Lithgow. They came to study homo sapiens. The humor is laced with jokes derived from their ignorance of us. For example, Lithgow wants to know what religion they are. He asks their landlady. She replies, "Well, your name is Solomon, so you must be Jewish."

"Oh, we're Jewish!" they all say in unison with the perfect accent.

How would aliens feel about bridge? Maybe they would find the game easy. But if they were only logical thinkers, the psychological side of the game might baffle them.

Would an alien find the "best" play in this deal? When West leads the spade king against three no-trump, the alien might duck at trick one, hoping to pull off the Bath Coup. But it shouldn't be difficult for West to switch to the jack heart, defeating the contract.

So, the alien will probably win the first trick and lead the diamond queen, going up with dummy's ace when West doesn't cover with the king. However, East wins the second diamond and returns his remaining spade: down one.

A human will play the spade jack at trick one. If West believes this card, he will continue with another spade. South wins with the ace and takes the diamond finesse, making the contract. (If East has a spade left, the suit is presumably splitting 4-3.)

The spade jack has an excellent chance to win the intergalactic bridge challenge.

Don't put your feet up in car

Annie Lane

Dear Annie: Every day, I see kids in the front passenger seat with their feet on the dashboard.

This is incredibly dangerous. In a low-impact crash that does not signal air bag deployment, this body position has moved the seat belt, assuming it's being used, off the waist and onto the abdomen, and near the throat. Worse, though, is the knees are in completely the wrong orientation to flex and move with the force of the crash.

Air bags deploy beginning with moderate crashes, defined as hitting a parked car at about 20 mph. In other words, almost every crash deploys the air bags. An air bag deploying directly under the feet can lead to devastating, life-altering injuries to the feet, ankles, knees, hip and tendons.

An air bag system must detect a crash of enough force and then fully deploy the air bags in less than 80 milliseconds, which is less than one-tenth of one second. The fundamental point is for the head and torso to contact a fully deployed air bag (now an air pillow). Contact with the surface of an air bag that is still expanding at great speed results in facial injuries, as well as possible upper torso injuries.

In fact, on impact, the air bag is already deflating. This is why air bags are in no way an excuse to not wear seat belts, which slow your body's forward motion until the air bag is fully inflated. — Concerned Driver

Dear Concerned Driver: Not only is putting your feet on the dashboard incredibly dangerous, as your letter points out, it's also unattractive and bad manners. It is on the same level of rudeness with putting your feet on the table. Yuck.

Dear Annie: Your advice to the woman whose sister did not want to quit smoking won't work. Quietly looking into alternatives to quit smoking is like giving diets to an overweight friend. You lose the weight when YOU decide to, and you quit the smokes the same way.

As a formerly overweight smoker who lost the weight eight years ago, and quit smoking 25 years ago, I knew I needed to do these things long before I actually did them. The sister doesn't need reminders to quit, information on how or scolding. She knows she should quit. All her sister can really do is ask her not to smoke in her presence.

This is one of those journeys each person starts on their own. The time for support is after the journey begins. Good luck to them both! — Former Smoker

Dear Former Smoker: I am printing your letter for its personal experience and great points. With any addiction, the addict has to want to stop on their own. Once they make that commitment, you can offer a ton of support.

Dear Annie: This is regarding the letters about getting teenagers to brush their teeth. I've found that peer pressure is just about all that works with teens. If possible, enlist another teen to let them know how bad their breath smells when they don't brush -- or how unpopular they will be romantically with bad breath and rotten teeth. These kids are using not brushing as a way to maintain control. They want to watch the adults in their lives dance. The only thing that will work with them is if their friends step in with an "EWW!" Been there. — Savvy Grandma

Dear Savvy Grandma: You are probably correct that peer pressure will be the most effective way to get these teens to brush their teeth. Thanks for writing.
